a Mexican by the name of Juan returned with a verdict. Acosta, in the Bank Saloon on the night of March 16, 1908. He was tending bar in the Bank Saloon at the time of the killing. The Mexican was intoxicated and came in and asked Ray to sell him a quart of whiskey on credit, which Ray refused to do. The Mexican became angry and left the saloon. He returned shortly and began abusing Ray. and asking him why he did'nt sell him the whiskey. Ray replied that he had orders not to sell any whiskey on a credit. At this juncture the Mexican threw some money down on a card table near the bar, exclaiming that he didn't need any credit and that he would go out and get a pistol and fix Ray. He left the saloon, and in a few moments returned, coming in at the south door.
